

Why Integrated EHR Software Is Increasingly Necessary in Dental Practices

In the computer age, digital records have become the norm. Gone are the days of row after row of shelves of patient records. With patient records stored digitally, there is also no chance a patient's record can be misplaced or lost. The information can be brought up on any computer in the office, allowing for greater access and improved efficiency.

Key Areas in Dental Software Programs

- Billing and Payment
- Appointment Management
- Chart Maintenance

Billing and Payment

Dental software programs are designed to help dental practices become more efficient. Many dentists are so focused on providing excellent treatment that the billing and payment component of their practice falls to the wayside. Administrative functions in this area are vital to a successful practice. If insurance companies are not properly billed, it can delay payments by months.

Appointment Management

When patients miss appointments, it costs you. If you are under booking appointments and your staff is sitting around, it costs you. When patients are double-booked, and leave for another practice out of frustration, it costs you. We can help ensure appointments will not be double booked and your waiting room remains full. Reminders can be sent so patients do not forget their appointments.

Chart Maintenance

Maintaining patient records is more important than ever, in today's age. Being detailed in notes can be key for patient treatment and in protecting your practice from lawsuits.

Keeping patient charts up to date with detailed information has never been easier. Look at us for Dental Software Solutions for Dentists. Let's be your partner for success.
